

Welcome to study languages at the University of Helsinki Language Centre!

The world of work requires experts with good language skills. At the Language Centre you can attain good and varied language proficiency in a flexible manner. In addition to studies in a foreign language and Swedish or Finnish as the second national language, as well as studies in Swedish or Finnish as a native language studies included in your degree, it is worthwhile to take advantage of what else the Language Centre has to offer.

It is recommended that you plan your language studies early on in your studies. Learning a totally new language should be started immediately during your first year, so that you will have time to attain a level of proficiency that supports your studies, the world of work and internationalisation.

Communication and language studies included in a bachelor's degree

All degrees include a certain amount of compulsory communication and language studies. These studies are completed as part of a first-cycle, or bachelor's, degree and their minimum scope is 10 cr:

1. Studies in the second national language (Swedish/Finnish), 3 cr
2. Studies in one foreign language, 4 cr (starting skill level in English: CEFR B2, in other languages: CEFR B1)
3. Communication skills in the native language (Finnish/Swedish), at minimum 3 cr.

The language of your secondary education affects the completion of your studies. Some degree programmes may also include studies in a second foreign language.

The aim of language studies is to provide you with a sufficient communications and language proficiency for positions in your field as well as international activities and cooperation. Studies can be completed with a course or exemption examination. Courses in English, Swedish and native language are organised on each campus. Courses in other languages are organised, as a rule, in the City Centre Campus. The recommended timing of compulsory language studies varies according to degree programme.

If you are completing a Master's degree only, the language of your secondary education is Finnish or Swedish and you have completed your Bachelor's degree abroad, you must complete studies in the second national language and a foreign language in your Master's degree.

Do not worry, if you have no time to register for a course in the first teaching period, since new courses begin in all periods. If you cannot attend a course for which you have registered, please remember to cancel your registration so that as many students as possible can attend the course.

Recognition of prior learning

You may have studies completed in another Finnish or foreign higher education institution or other educational establishment counted towards your degree and substitute studies in the degree syllabus with other studies of the same level. More information on recognition of language studies is available on the Instructions for Students website and you can always ask the Language Centre's student advisors for assistance.

The Language Centre offers plenty more

In addition to language studies included in the degree, you can start studying an entirely new language (e.g., Arabic, Japanese, Portuguese) or deepen your existing language proficiency. In all, the Language Centre provides teaching in over ten languages. Additionally, it is possible to complete a study module in Chinese, English, Italian, Japanese, French, German, Spanish, Swedish, German or Russian language which can be included in your degree (please always check the applicability from your degree programme.). In addition, the Language Centre offers also a study module in Finnish as a native language and a multilingual study module.

Language anxieties and diverse learning

Learning difficulties or anxieties may interfere with language studies. If your previous experiences worry you or raise questions in your mind, feel free to discuss them with our English-language tutor Fergal Bradley or Swedish-language tutor Tiina Mäenpää who specialise in supervising special learners.

Teacher tutor provides advice

Teacher tutors will provide you with answers to your possible questions related to language studies. Teacher tutors are Language Centre teachers and they also provide supervision for studying certain courses independently. You may also study languages online independently.

Learning a language together with international students

International students support you in learning a language in Language Centre courses. They work as Language Centre course assistants, i.e., provide peer support, in their native language and help, for example, in pronunciation, discussions and groupwork. Course assistants are available for almost all teaching languages of the Language Centre. The activities provide local students with an opportunity to internationalise at home and international students with an opportunity to get to know Finnish students.

Big multilingual workshops are also organised at the Language Centre, which discuss cultural issues from a variety of perspectives. A couple of workshops will be organised every academic year.

You can learn more about registration, recognition of prior learning, teacher tutor activities and other issues related to language studies as well as other Language Centre activities by asking from Student Services and reading the Instructions for Students. You can also come and chat with the Language Centre's student advisors.

"As a course assistant at the Language Centre, it was an honor for me to help the Finnish students and Language Centre teachers. It also helped me in learning more about the Finnish culture, education and language teaching. The best part was to meet new people and get to know amazing Finnish students."
